Lebanon Valley College

2013-2014 PRESIDENT'S REPORT

An Interview with Dr. Lewis E. Thayne

PRESIDENT OF LEBANON VALLEY COLLEGE

This issue of the President's Report spotlights many of the milestones and firsts achieved by Lebanon Valley College faculty and students during the 2013-2014 academic year. We recently sat down with Dr. Lewis E. Thayne, who is in his third year as president of Lebanon Valley College, to talk about the future of our College.

Q. What events or accomplishments from 2013-2014 meant a lot to you personally?

A. There were so many. It was an extraordinarily exciting year, but three events in particular stood out: our first annual Symposium on Inclusive Excellence, celebrated on Martin Luther King Jr. Day; the establishment of the Lebegern Learning Commons; and the opening of the Lebanon Valley College Physical Therapy and Sports Rehabilitation Clinic on Main Street.

The symposium was a moment when this school was absolutely at its best. We have embarked on a new phase of looking at diversity at Lebanon Valley College; we call it inclusive excellence. The entire symposium was inspirational and the closing presentation in Sorrentino Gymnasium was particularly fun, educational, and engaging. It brought us all together.

In addition, the establishment of the Lebegern Learning Commons—a concept that was developed years ago but only now realized through the generosity of Howard F. Lebegern '49 and Margaret Neal Lebegern—is especially important to the success of all of our students. The idea was built around the needs of our students, but the vision that we now have is built around possibilities. What are the possibilities for all students, including those with learning, writing, study abroad, and career development needs and goals? The space is beautiful. It is heavily used and that is encouraging.

Finally, the PT Clinic [LVC Physical Therapy and Sports Rehabilitation Clinic] strengthens a flagship program for us while simultaneously enabling us to meet some practical needs. We had sent our student-athletes far-and-wide for treatment and that arrangement did not make sense financially, physically, or from a scheduling perspective. The Clinic already has more business than it can handle, so financially it is a winner for us. Our student-athletes, as well as members of the community, use the Clinic. I look forward to seeing our students and faculty working together in the Clinic to apply what they have learned in the classroom.

Editor's Note: Dr. Thayne, who injured his leg during a Maine hiking incident on July 30, participated in his first physical therapy session at the Clinic immediately after this interview. He jokingly told us about seeing a look in the eyes of our physical therapy students, eagerly anticipating being able to use their newly learned skills on a college president.

Q. Let's talk about the future. What is your major priority for this current fiscal year of 2014-2015?

A. The highest priority is our strategic plan—our envisioned future—which looks broadly at our College. There is a great future for this College. Yet, we need to come together regarding a shared sense of priority to make sure we accomplish the things that are important to us. The four focuses that we identified—world-ready students, educational excellence, financial sustainability, and a high-performance organization—are the right areas. The Board of Trustees and campus community are reviewing the first draft. We hope to share a final draft with the board for their review and approval at the February 2015 board meeting.

Approval is the first step; the real work starts after the plan is approved and implementation begins. There is a boldness in the plan that I admire, yet bold ideas mean that a high-performing organization will need to implement them responsibly over time while maintaining financial sustainability.

I am a part of all that I have met.
—Alfred Lord Tennyson

“The most important message I have is that all these challenges should inspire courage—the best solutions come out of difficult situations.”

Q. Our College will undertake two major initiatives after the rollout of the strategic plan: a comprehensive campaign and a campus master plan. Can you talk about how you see those two processes unfolding?

A. It has been a long time since we have had a comprehensive campaign at Lebanon Valley College. We did not have a campaign with the last strategic plan, so there is work to do toward preparing our alumni, friends, and campus community. We will spend a lot of time this year getting ready, including bringing in outside expertise.

The great thing about a comprehensive campaign coming out of a strategic plan is that it allows us to reposition our College to take the language of the strategic plan and put it in terms of making a case for the future of our College. It can also build the alumni network, which is a strategic necessity for Lebanon Valley College. You always measure campaigns with dollars but the lasting benefits are really in the connections and relationships you build, which are great resources for our students and alumni.

The previous campus master plan has been completed for some time. We have a 340-acre campus that matches the beauty of any campus. We have some challenges, which are Route 934 and the railroad, but we have great possibilities going forward.

With the addition of athletic training and exercise science programs, a priority of the new campus master plan must be to look at classroom usage and configuration, in addition to land usage. It will also look at the ideal locations for new buildings, how open space could best be used, whether graduate or additional types of student housing are needed, and ways in which we can improve our campus gateways.

In essence, the strategic plan, comprehensive campaign, and campus master plan all have to work together, move in the same direction, and sequence properly.

Q. In conclusion, are there any other thoughts that you want to address?

A. I feel very good about the future of higher education in the United States, despite that we are in a transition period. I do not minimize, nor should anyone minimize, how difficult this period will be. However, no one should minimize how big the rewards are going to be on the other side of these challenges. Once the public realizes how important scale is, how size matters, and that attention to the individual is crucial, we will be successful. The curriculum and co-curriculum can help our students and alumni succeed, so that we can produce world-ready students.

The most important message I have is that all these challenges should inspire courage—the best solutions come out of difficult situations.

The 2013–2014 academic year was a challenging one for institutions of higher education in the United States. According to an annual Gallop survey conducted for the online publication Inside Higher Ed, 59 percent of private colleges did not fill their freshmen classes last year. This fall, 71 percent of these institutions failed to meet their freshmen enrollment targets. Lebanon Valley College, under the leadership of President Lewis E. Thayne, Ph.D., has addressed this issue by acting anew on a number of existing programs while introducing new initiatives that promote vitality, prestige, and longevity.

Lebanon Valley College relies on its historic strengths to create new opportunities for our students, faculty, and alumni. Here is a brief look at some historic milestones and College “firsts” that occurred during the past year.

MILESTONES and FIRSTS

Center for Global Education Established

In the late 1980s and early 1990s, LVC was home to more than 100 international students from 45 countries. Now, the College has launched several initiatives to reintroduce a significant international presence on campus. In addition to signing a memorandum of understanding with Tianjin Yaohua High School in Tianjin, China, one of the most prestigious high schools in China, the College recently established its ground-breaking Center for Global Education.

Caitlin Murphy '12 was hired this summer to help accomplish the College's goal of enhancing the international presence on campus. While an undergraduate, she was the College's first-ever intern at the Center for European Studies in Maastricht, Netherlands. She has already made recruiting visits to Beijing, China, and Amsterdam, Netherlands. “Beijing is an attractive city because there are many international schools in which the primary education is taught in English,” Murphy said. “Having students with proficient English will enhance their chances for success at LVC.”

Record Number of Dutchmen Named All-American; First Female Jerseys Retired

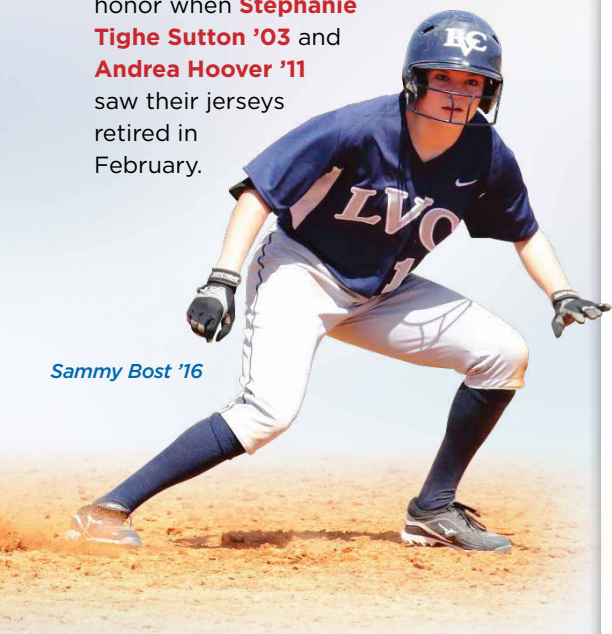

Michael Harnish '15

A record number of four Flying Dutchmen student-athletes were named CoSIDA Academic All-Americans in 2013-14. A record number of 10 student-athletes were named All-Americans in their respective sports, including the first-ever All-Americans in softball (Sam Derr '14 and Sammy Bost '16) and men's indoor track & field (Michael Harnish '15).

Jocelyn Novak '12, LVC's all-time leading scorer for field hockey, became the first female student-athlete in LVC history to have her jersey retired last fall. Two other former stars, both in women's basketball, also received the honor when Stephanie Tighe Sutton '03 and Andrea Hoover '11 saw their jerseys retired in February.

Athletic Training and Exercise Science Majors Added

Starting in September 2015, students can pursue a 3+2 athletic training major, which will lead to a master's degree, or a traditional four-year exercise science major, earning a bachelor's degree.

Luke Berguson '15, D'17 is co-captain of the men's basketball team and in his fourth year as a student athletic trainer—one of more than 20 current student athletic trainers. "I think it's great that students in these new programs will have the opportunity to work with LVC's certified athletic trainers—Erin Ulrich, Caitlin Foltz, and Megan Inama—who are among the best in the Middle Atlantic Conference," Berguson said. "LVC will provide these students with real-life experiences and learning opportunities that they will directly benefit from."

To learn more about these programs, visit www.lvc.edu/athletic-training and www.lvc.edu/exercise-science.

College Renews Historic Partnership with Dixon University Center in Harrisburg

Beginning in January 2015, LVC's Office of Graduate & Professional Studies will offer corporate training solutions and two post-graduate programs at the Dixon University Center's Harrisburg campus. These are the first programs offered by the College at Dixon since 1989.

LVC Opens Physical Therapy and Sports Rehabilitation Clinic in Annville

This August, the College opened the Lebanon Valley College Physical Therapy and Sports Rehabilitation Clinic in Annville offering public access to expert physical therapy care.

"The Clinic is another example of how innovation and entrepreneurial energies of faculty and students have come together to provide educational excellence," said President Thayne. "I am thrilled to see this new, meaningful way for our students and faculty to work with our community."

The Clinic, located at 35 W. Main St. in Annville, provides physical therapy services to the College's Athletic Department, the LVC community, and the community at large.

Dr. Brian Peers, clinical assistant professor of physical therapy at LVC, is a board-certified orthopedic clinical specialist who also serves as the Clinic director. Peers oversees a team of Physical Therapy Department faculty and students who assist with patient care and some Clinic operations.

"The Physical Therapy and Sports Rehabilitation Clinic provides a unique clinical education experience for our physical therapy students and future athletic training students," said Peers. "It also provides a venue for collaborative student-faculty research and creates greater community accessibility to the expertise of Lebanon Valley College's faculty."

Visit www.lvc.edu/Ptclinic for more information.

"Our new post-graduate certificate programs in business administration and health care management will be available at the Dixon University Center in Harrisburg, at the IU-13 in Lancaster, and here on the Annville campus," said Dr. Gregory Buckley, associate dean of graduate & professional studies. "The Dixon Center is an incredible facility, and this is a wonderful opportunity for LVC to again be part of it and the Harrisburg metropolitan community."

New Study-Abroad Programs in The Dominican Republic; Record Number of Students Study Abroad

Two new programs in the Dominican Republic were added as full-semester study-abroad options for LVC students. Students can study in Santo Domingo, the oldest continuously inhabited European settlement in the Americas, or choose an academic or service-learning track in Santiago. These options are in addition to LVC's new study-abroad program in China, which was added in fall 2013.

The year also saw a record number of students study abroad, with the total surpassing the century mark for the first time (101). The previous record was 85 students, in both 2011-12 and 2012-13.

First Allwein Scholars Selected

Through the generosity of one of LVC's highly successful graduates, the College can now more fully compete for the best-of-the-best among high school graduates.

With funds donated through an estate gift from Dr. John "Jack" Bowman Allwein '56—the largest such gift in the College's history—President Thayne established the John Bowman Allwein Scholars Program, the College's most prestigious honor for incoming freshmen. The inaugural group of Allwein Scholars were welcomed to campus this fall.

Chosen for their extraordinary accomplishments and exceptional promise in academics, leadership, or music, Allwein Scholars receive a fulltuition scholarship; an annual stipend of $2,500 for research, travel, or study expenses; and a designated faculty mentor who serves as their primary faculty advisor. Dr. Jeff Robbins, chair of religion and philosophy, professor of religion, and director of American studies, is the inaugural Allwein faculty mentor. The historic first class of Allwein Scholars includes Nate Gibbons (Frederick, Md., physics), Shaquel Marshall (Baltimore, Md., 3+2 Engineering Program), Ciara Marshall (Rising Sun, Md., biochemistry & molecular biology), Andrew Martz (Duncannon, music recording technology, physics minor), and Andrew Meglathery (Robesonia, actuarial science).

College Bestows Record Number of Gold Community Service Awards and Leads First International Service-Learning Trip

In a year that witnessed an increased number of community service hours for the sixth consecutive year—23,810 hours in total—it is not surprising that LVC also awarded a record number of individual Gold Community Service Awards. Community Service Awards recognize outstanding service to the local community by individuals and student organizations. Individual students earn the Gold Award for more than 100 hours of service and completion of a three-day residential service project. In 2013–2014, 28 LVC students qualified for the Gold Community Service Award, 12 more than the previous year.

Many of these record-setting service hours were earned by students while studying abroad or during the College's first-ever international service-learning trip. Through a collaboration between the Department of Languages, the Office of Community Service and Samuel Calabria '15, Katelyn Chamberlain '15, Gabbie Groff '14, D'16, Stephanie Marshall '17, Robyn Moore '15, Anna Quinn '17, Matt Snader '16, Krystal Steenwyk '15, Andrew Stoltzfus '15, Katie Ulrich '15, Sara Urner '16, Amy Wagner '16, Dr. Gabriela McEvoy, Dr. Ivette Guzman-Zavala, and Dr. John Hinshaw traveled to Peru to work with members of the Mismiñay community on a variety of cultural and social projects.

Volunteerism, and the Center for Global Education, 12 students and three faculty members received a President's Innovation Fund grant to travel to Peru in May. The group worked with members of the Mismiñay community on a variety of cultural and social projects.

"We're particularly pleased to have recorded 450 hours of international community service this past year," said Rev. Paul Fullmer, Ph.D., chaplain and director of service and volunteerism.

Blue & White Club gifts support student-athletes on all 24 of LVC's teams, including (l. to r.): Emily White '16 (cross country and track & field), Brian Lowe '16 (soccer), Zach Faulkner '17 (basketball), Frank Gaffney '15 (football), Rick Beard '90, '92 (director of athletics), Kacey Musselman '15 (volleyball), and Kayla Confer '15 (volleyball).

Leadership Council Established

The College has created a new Leadership Council, comprised of several smaller regional leadership councils, to serve as an advisory group to assist the president, board of trustees, and other College officials. Comprised of alumni, parents, and friends, members carefully consider and discuss issues of strategic importance to the College, offering wisdom and counsel. Members serve as advocates for the institution and help secure the College's vitality and long-term financial strength. Four regional leadership councils were established in 2013-2014—in Boston, Harrisburg, Lancaster, and the Philadelphia Metro area—with plans for additional councils under way.

Blue & White Club Founded

This year the Office of Advancement collaborated with the Athletics Department to create the Blue & White Club, to provide annual assistance for all Dutchmen student-athletes and teams. Through gifts to the Blue & White Club, alumni, parents, and friends of the College can play a role in the support and enhancement of the student-athlete experience at LVC.

Gifts through the Blue & White Club benefit 24 intercollegiate sports, help purchase team equipment and uniforms, improve athletic facilities, and more.

Show your Dutchmen pride and visit GoDutchmen.com/BlueandWhite to join the Blue & White Club today! There you can contribute to the Blue & White Club, which supports all LVC athletics, or to a specific team(s).

LVC Named to Safest Campus List

The College earned an A+ and 17th overall ranking for campus health and safety from a new ranking list by Niche, a ranking and review company.

The Safest Campus list ranks 1,127 colleges based on crime statistics and more than 330,000 opinions from 82,000 students. A high ranking indicates that there is little or no crime on campus, low drug and alcohol use, and students report that the college provides a safe and healthy environment for students.

Football Earns First NCAA Bid: First National Ranking

Under the leadership of long-time coach Jim Monos, the Flying Dutchmen football squad won the program's first MAC title since 1969, earned the program's first-ever NCAA postseason bid, and recorded a school-record seven-game winning streak. Other team firsts included a win over a top-25 team and a top-25 national ranking (#22). In addition to three players being named All-American, a program-record 14 players were named All-MAC.

LVC Introduces Early Decision Admission

Another College first: high school seniors interested in being part of LVC's Class of 2019 had the opportunity to apply for early decision to enroll for fall 2015.

"Early decision admission is an opportunity for those students who are very serious about coming to Lebanon Valley College to jump to the front of the line," said Sue Jones '92, senior associate director of admission. "With early decision admission each year, the applications will be reviewed by our enrollment team, and these students will be the first to be notified of their acceptance to Lebanon Valley College."

THE COMMON APPLICATION

LVC Joins Common Application

The College has joined the ranks of the more than 500 colleges and universities who participate in the Common Application, a nonprofit organization that provides a single application for college-bound students to apply to any of its member schools. Students interested in enrolling at LVC for fall 2015 admission can apply now at www.commonapp.org.

"The Common Application streamlines the college application process for high school students," said Sue Jones '92, senior associate director of admission. "It will expand Lebanon Valley College's reach to many students and families who are seeking an active and engaged education at a regional liberal arts school and were previously unaware of our institution."

College Awards First-Ever Interfaith Certificates

LVC's Interfaith Certificate Program enables students to learn about different faiths through the successful completion of several requirements, including participation in eight interfaith opportunities at LVC, completion of an approved course in the Department of Religion and Philosophy, and submission of several written reflections. Six students—Marquis Bey '14, Marissa Ingeno '14, Daniel Kimmel '14, Bethany Mary '15, Elizabeth Zeiner '15, and Rebecca Sausser '16—were the first LVC students to earn this certificate.

(l. to r.): Daniel Kimmel '14, Marissa Ingeno '14, and Marquis Bey '14

Lebegern Learning Commons Established

A $2.5-million renovation of the Mund College Center's lower level established the new Lebegern Learning Commons, which provides a communal space for active, engaged learning for all students.

The new facility is equipped with the latest in technology and serves as a gathering place for all students to learn, study, and collaborate. It houses the Center for Writing and Tutoring Resources, Center for Disability Services, Center for Global Education, and Center for Career Development. The Commons also includes a new Commuter Center, multiple technology hubs, and an updated Multipurpose Room/Underground. New spaces were created for use by the Wig and Buckle Theater Company, the digital communications and music recording technology programs, and other campus groups.

"Everything about the Lebegern Learning Commons is committed to enriching the student learning experience inside and outside the classroom," said Steven O'Day, special assistant to the president for innovative programs. "The Lebegern Learning Commons and the resources housed within it are remarkable and will deepen student learning across campus."

The Lebegern Learning Commons is named for Howard F. Lebegern '49 and his wife of 59 years,

Margaret Neal Lebegern. The Lebegern's estate gift in excess of $1 million was made after a lifetime of support of the mission and values of Lebanon Valley College. The Lebegerns were members of The Thomas Rhys Vickroy Society, the College's highest philanthropic society, and provided financial support to LVC students and faculty throughout their lives.

Most Diverse Class in History; Office of Multicultural Affairs Expands

This year's entering class was by far the most diverse ever recruited, with 17.9% of new students being from racially diverse backgrounds. The College's ALANA (African, Latino, Asian, and Native American) enrollment has steadily increased since the fall of 2010 class, when 8.6% of new students were ALANA. Overall, 12.8% of current students are ALANA.

Olajiwon McCadney was hired this summer as the assistant director of multicultural affairs to help this growing student population succeed and graduate. McCadney works closely with Venus Ricks, director of multicultural affairs, to advise and support the College's 182 multicultural fellows, 89 of whom are first-year students, as well as an additional 35 students who are graduates of the Milton Hershey School and Lebanon Valley Education Partnership. Additionally, McCadney oversees the work of the Women's Services and Gender Resource Center. The work done thus far with the center includes a campaign to educate the College community about intimate partner violence and an initiative involving center volunteers to change the name of the center to be more inclusive, welcoming, and in line with the needs of all students. "I want to advocate for a safe and just environment for all students regardless of sexual orientation or gender identity/expression as they transition and acclimate to LVC," said McCadney.

Rocket Scientist “Launches” Celebration of Women in the Sciences

Under the leadership of Dr. Robert Valgenti, associate professor of philosophy and director of the College’s annual Colloquium, the Office of Admission held a Celebration of Women in the Sciences in October. Natalie Panek, a rocket scientist, explorer, and advocate for women in technology, was the keynote speaker. The capacity audience of high school and middle school students and teachers spent time with LVC science students, faculty, and alumni to learn about the College’s nationally recognized science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) programs. Amy Seddon Smith ’04, a science teacher at Minersville Jr./Sr. High School, brought more than 40 of her students for the day.

Several afternoon panels featured eight LVC STEM alumnae prominent in their respective fields. The alumnae spoke with current LVC students about graduate school and career experiences and opportunities. They were:

Stephanie Blanda ’09—Ph.D. candidate in mathematics, Pennsylvania State University

Dr. Camille DeClementi ’90—senior director, American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals

Dr. Nicole Enman ’08—postdoctoral researcher, Drexel University College of Medicine

Dr. Ashleigh Symenski Felpel ’09—pathology program resident, Madigan Army Medical Center on Joint Base Lewis-McChord, Wash.

Amy Ryesky Fennel ’09—application programmer, Conrad Siegel Actuaries

Dr. Christine Lightcap ’04—manager, YES Pharmaceutical Development Services

Renee Kitchenman McGovern ’05—assistant vice president and actuary, ACE Group

Lindsey Irvin Wenger ’12—third-year Pharm.D. candidate in the University of the Sciences in Philadelphia Pharmacy Program

Dr. Nicole Enman ’08 (back, l.) and Dr. Camille DeClementi ’90 (back, r.), returned to campus to speak about their career paths and experiences with current undergraduates. They were among eight alumnae who graciously returned for the first Celebration of Women in the Sciences.
